LISTEN, CARE-TAKERS OF JAN LOKPAL BILL

It is good that Version 2.1 of Jan Lokpal Bill has been purged of the long, difficult-to-remember title that it used to wear earlier. At first sight vast improvement is visible in comparison to the previous draft, which appeared to be hastily drafted by some non-professional or semi-professional people. Still there are silly errors here and there stalking the revised text of the Bill. For instance, read Section 27(2)(b) of the Bill- 'The Ethics Committee shall, within a month, decide whether to'. It seems the sentence remains incomplete. It is essential that the very drafters and members of the drafting panel scan it as minutely as possible and bring about constant revision, especially immediately after the errors have been identified by the viewers. It is expected that before the first meeting of the joint panel is held, the Draft Jan Lokpal Bill ought to read a fool-proof document at least in syntactic sense.
